Last evening Mr. Heeman called at our office, and after expressing his surprise at the haste with which Mr. Morrissey was pressing the affair to an issue, left with us the following acceptance of the supposed chaffenge.

New Yoak, Jury 17, 1850.—I have noticed with much satisfaction that John Morrissey declares he will keep the promine made to me before I went to Europe and give me a second meeting in the tring. This in itself pays me for the time I spent in England, and I at once accept of all the terms he offers, and choose for the stakes the highest sum he names. In proof thereof I will place in any responsible man's hands the sum of $2,500 as a proliminary deposit for a match of $10,000 a side, pending the drawing of the articles and the selection of a stakeholder. I should have been pleased, after my long stay abroad, to have had a few weeks of leisure to enjoy among my friends; but as there is no way in which I can be gratified so much as by being guaranteed at early match with Morrissey, I hope they will excuse me for this new occupation of my time. If Mr. Morrissey will send me word by note when and where he desires to see me for the arrangement of preliminaries, I will meet him without delay; and the only further wish I now desire to express is, that, like the stakes, the forfeit may be large.

Yours truly, JOHN C. HEENAN.

Wednesday's New York papers inform us:
Another episode in the excitement attending the arrival of John C. Heenan, the "Benicia Boy," occurred last night in the shape of a shooting affray between two puguacious individuals, which resulted in a damaged finger to one and a bullet in the leg of an innocent bystander.

was gathered in the Malta Satoon, situated on the corner of Thirteenth-street and Broadway, the headquarters of Heenan, as has been usual every day since his arrival, drawn together by the irrepressible curiosity to see the hero, which just now pervades the entire community. In this crowd were two individuals named Patrick McDonaid and John Dugan, a Deputy-Marshal, as we are informed, under Captain Rynders, the former being a warm supporter of the "Boy," and the latter a friend of Morrissey.

serious dispute, and the parties retired to the sidewalk. Here, it is said, McDonald struck Dugan several times, applying to him all sorts of opprobrious epithets embraced in the calendar. Dugan, in the meanwhile acting on the defensive, said he did not desire to have a muss, and retreated a few steps backward, evidently wishing to avoid a fight. McDonald, however, followed him up and struck him again, when Dugan drew a revolver and rapidly fired four times in succession. Then, taking to his heels, he started off on a lively run, followed by a shouting crowd of men and boys.

McDonald, it is said, boldly faced the fire, making every effort to get at his antagonist, but strange to say was hit but once, and that in the little finger of his left hand, the ball passing through the second joint from the inside. One of the bystanders, named Wm. G. The doctor stated that McDonald was likely to lose his finger, and did not succeed in extracting the ball from the limb of Mr. Robinson.

THE BENICIA BOY'S FUTURE INTENTIONS. The New York Clipper, of this week

The New York Clipper, of this week, observes:

The Boy looks in rugged health, is stoucr than when he left our shores, and weight as the present time about two inhidred and forty pounds. We were very glad to learn that he has eachewed the use of spirituous liquors, and has not tasted the unclean thing since he left us. His resolution to abstain continues strong, and though temptations best him on every side, he has the courage to say no, and to adhere to it when urged to drink. We trust that those who wish the man well, will aid him in his endeavors to steer clear of all desipation and excesses.

We had a brief conversation with Heenan in regard to Morrises, but unless circumstances should render it actually necessary, the public need have no fear of a street encounter as many had predicted. Whether he will issue a formal challenge for a fair and manily hand to hand meeting in the roped arens with Morrisesy, a few weeks will determine. Heenan keenly feels that he has been shamefully tracated by his old antagonist, yet he makes no boast as to what he intends to do, as some of the London newspapers have so londly asserted. He may give Morrisey a chance to make good his words, as the latter has frequently proclaimed that he meant to fight the boy on his return to this country.

Heenan is gentlemanly and courteous in his conversation, and does not allow his temper to become ruffied even while speaking of his censure. He avowed his objections to any public demonstration, prefering to see and converse with his friends in a quite and unoatentations manner. We saked him if he intends to give a sparing excibition in this city. He replied that he had no such in the city. He replied that he had no such intention, and he is averies to all public display. A Hestile Meeting About a Love Affair of the Continent-Duct Between an Amertenn and an Austrian Count.

the Centinent Duct Between an American and an Assertan Count.

A Paris correspondent writes as follows of an interesting affair on the Continent:

There was at Florence, lately, and last summer at Ostend, a young American lady, in whom beauty, grace, and personal distinction were united with wealth and the honor of one of the first names of the New World. Miss W., whose triumphs have already, on several occasions enlivened our pen, belongs to the aristocracy of the United States. Her family is among that small number which preserves the ribbon—a procious symbol and commemorative insignis of the national independence. One of her ancestors was one of the most noble and intelligent sustistants of Washington, in his great and patriotic work.

A young officer, lately in the Austrian service, the Count H. de D., an accomplished gentleman, happened to be in the town of Ostend, and foll entransed before the wandering fairy of the New World, He was afraid of this sudden invasion on his heart. He wished to fly, and he fled; but love mounted in the same wagon with him. After a little time the Count H. demanded of Madame W the hand of her charming daughter, who was then with her family at Ostend. The request was granted. The family went, to Paris to prepare for the marriage, and established themselves at Saint Germain. The father of the young Count then arrived. Alt the preliminaries were arranged; the marriage was published at the Church of Saint father of the young Count then arrived. All the preliminaries were arranged; the marriage was published at the Church of Saint Germain and at Vienna, where the celebration was to take place. The elite of the Parlisian public, who had received letters of invitation, thought that the marriage would soon be celebrated, and that the honeymoon would be enjoyed in some mysterious German manor-house, when suddenly they learnt that the brother of Mademoiselle W. bad, on the 20th inst., a meeting at Aix-la-Chapelle with him who was to be his brother-in-law, and that without the intervention of a kind Providence one would have killed the other.

It was the Count H. de D., who was counted. Let us explain this tragedy with bloody, though happily not a fatal denou-

All went well until the arrival of the fian All went well until the arrival of the frances at Vienna. It is necessary to tell you that the Count H, de D. is one of the first gentlemen of old Germany. His father is Count here, Margrave there, and Seignor of so many Seigneuries that a page of letter would scarcely suffice to enumerate his titles and properties. This is why the Viennese aristocracy could not see, without lively diseatisfaction, so much nobility and wealth go to a foreigner, above all, to a republican. Then commenced a war of counsels against the pro-foreigner, above all, to a republican. Then commenced a war of counsels against the projects of the future husband of Mile. W. An alliance against him was formed by young and old women. The Count is a gallant man, but he is not a rock. One fine morning he declared that the opposition displayed on all sides prevented him from putting in execution his dearest wishes.

The brother of the young lady, who had remained at Paris, and who calculated to arrive at Vienna just in time for the ceremony, would not pacifically accept a change in the programme. The two young men made a would not pacifically accept a change in the programme. The two young men made a rendezvous at Cologne, but Cologne not being propitious, they went to Aix-la-Chapelle.

Mr. W. in his capacity of the offended party, had the choice of weapons, and selected pistoin. The adversaries were placed at thirty paces distant, with the right to advance ten paces. When the signal was given Mr. W. advanced two paces only and fired. Immediately the Count fell, and as he fell the pistol went off. Before his assistants could cun to his aid, his adversary had extended to ron to his aid, his adversary had extended to him his hand. In generous souls rancour does not survive a dangerous peril. If ever combatants were irreproachable on earth, they were these two gentlemen whom an er-ror divided, whom a combat reunited, and who evinced, with arms in their hands, how worthy they were of contracting the most intimate alliauce.

The life of Count H. de D. was saved by a miricle. The ball was extracted. The last intelligence is reassuring. All danger seems to have vanished.

A Love Adventure and Elopement in Can-ada-A Beautiful Belle in Trouble-One Suiter Chastises His Rival and is Ar-nda—A Beautiful Belle in Trouble—One Suitor Chastless His Rival and is Arrested.

An arrest was made the other morning at the Central Depot, which caused considerable talk in Rochester, N. Y. The party arrested was a young gentleman of Toronto, Neill Meintosh, and the complainant, John L. Lottie, said to be a young law student of that city. The party accused is a well-appearing, educated young man, and is said to be in good standing at Toronto. The complainant is a feminine appearing youth, with curly hair, parted in the front, and was altogether the cast of a "dem foin phellow."

The lady in, the case is Miss Marion Proudfoot, who is said to belong to the aristocracy of Toronto. She is attended by her mother, who appears to be a lady of refinement.

The facts in this case are substantially as follows: McIntosii had been a suitor for the hand of Miss Proudfoot, and had been favorably received by the lady. The mother was, however, adverse to his suit, and proved to be a material obstruction to his advances. She encouraged the rival, Lottie, who came out from Europe not long since and located in Toronto. Two months or more ago Mrs. Proudfoot, her daughter and Lottie went to Clifton Springs to spend the season, Lottie being out of health. Thither Mr. McIntosh followed, and took rooms, to watch the progress of events.

To avoid the society of his rival, McIntosh had his meals at a separate hour, and one day while he was at dinner, Lottie came into the dinlag-room and insulted him. He gave him a blow for his insolence, and this made the ground for an assault. Subsequently McIntosh went home to Toronto and remained until last week, when he received a letter ournorting to come from Miss Proudfoot, requesting him to go to Clifton. He went as far as Rochester, took a room at Congress Hall, and telegraphed the lady to meet him there.

turned their attention to the invention or discovery of some mode of rendering textile fibries fire-proof. Among the many qualities required in such an article, are cheapness, transparency, and case of application, and must not be capable of injuring the fabric to which it is applied. Among the many articles suggested the most successful yet used is phosphate of ammonia. It leavesthe fabric soft and pliable, acting but slightly on the fibre, and may be mixed with the starch. One ounce of the salt is dissolved in one quart of water, and applied either by itself or in the starch, said dried as usual. The only objection is the expense of the salt. H. N.
